

ABSTRACT

Tineke Lambooy has prepared a comment to the presentation of Dr Muzaffer Eroglu. She will put the question forward in which way company law stimulates or hinders groups of companies to formulate and implement climate change policies. Elements to consider: How are groups structured? Legally and economically? How could European or national company law enhance multinational companies to define climate change strategies, concrete ambitions and the implementation thereof? What is the role of reporting in this context?
