

A PRESENTATION OF THE SPEAKERS

Peter A. Appel is the Alex W. Smith Professor of Law at the University of Georgia. He teaches environmental law, natural resources law and property. His research spans three primary areas: the use of law to promote sustainable commerce, wilderness preservation and the courts, and doctrinal scholarship in environmental and natural resources law and property. Appel served as an attorney with the Environment and Natural Resources Division of the U.S. Department of Justice, served as a judicial clerk for Chief Judge Gilbert S. Merritt of the U.S. Court of Appeals for the 6th Circuit, and earned his bachelor's and law degrees from Yale University.

Aikaterini Argyrou is a qualified lawyer and a member of the Athens Bar Association in Greece. She recently started her PhD in Law at Utrecht University and Nyenrode Business University. Aikaterini Argyrou has been involved in various CSR and sustainability-oriented research projects for the last three years in the Netherlands such as The Hague Institute for the Internationalisation of Law (HiIL) and The Hague Utilities for Global Organisations (HUGO) programme. Furthermore, she has worked for the Economic and Commercial Affairs Office of the Greek Embassy in The Hague.

Vincenzo Bavoso, Dr., is a Post-Doctoral Research Associate in Durham Law School and in the Institute of Hazard Risk and Resilience at Durham University. He is currently working on the "Tipping Points" Project where he is conducting multidisciplinary research on the financial crisis in the banking sector. From March to September 2013 he was involved in the review of the OECD Finance Instruments together with Professor Emiliou Avgouleas.

Previously he was a lecturer in law at Kingston University (2011-2013) where he taught in the areas of Company, Commercial and Financial Law. In 2012 he obtained a PhD in Corporate and Financial Law from the University of Manchester where he also taught Company Law as an associate lecturer (2011). His main research interests lie in the areas of Corporate Law, Corporate Governance, Structured Finance and Financial Regulation.

Yuri Biondi is a tenured CNRS research fellow, appointed as research professor at ESCP Europe in Paris. A graduate of Bocconi University of Milan, Lyon University, Brescia University and Paris Sorbonne University, he is the editor in chief of the Journal "Accounting, Economics and Law: A Convivium" (<http://www.degruyter.com/view/j/ael>). He has edited "The Firm as an Entity: Implications for Economics, Accounting and Law" (Routledge, 2007), a special issue on "The Socio-Economics of Accounting" (Socio-Economic Review, October 2007), as well as "Accounting and Business Economics: Insights from National Traditions" (Routledge, 2012). He also convenes the SASE Research Network devoted to 'Accounting, Economics and Law' (<https://sase.org/>). He was chairman of the Financial Accounting Standards Committee (FASC) of the American Accounting Association (AAA) between August 2011 and August 2013, member since August 2010. His research interests include economic theory, accounting and financial regulation, corporate governance and social responsibility, as well as the relationships between economy, accounting, and finance in public and private entities. Link: <http://yuri.biondi.free.fr/>

Carrie Bradshaw is a Lecturer in Law at the University of York. Before this, she was a Teaching Fellow whilst undertaking doctoral research at University College London (UCL). Carrie's work looks at the interface of environmental law, company law and regulation, and considers the role for law and regulation in fostering a pro-environmental 'conscience' within companies. In October this year, she successfully defended her thesis, Corporations, Responsibility & the Environment, which will be published as a monograph by Hart Publishing.

Sustainable Companies

UiO : University of Oslo

Professor Blanaid Clarke is a McCann FitzGerald Professor of Corporate Law at Trinity College Dublin. Her research interests include corporate governance, securities law, takeover law and investor protection and she has published extensively in these areas. She was recently a member of the European Commission's Reflection Group on the Future of EU Company Law. She is currently a member of the OECD Corporate Governance Committee, the EU's European Securities and Markets Authority Takeover Bids Network, the European Corporate Governance Institute and the Institute of Directors. Blanaid works with the Irish Takeover Panel and was appointed to the Irish Central Bank Commission in 2010.

Surya Deva, Dr., is an Associate Professor at the School of Law of City University of Hong Kong. His primary research interests lie in Business and Human Rights, Corporate Social Responsibility, Indo-Chinese Constitutional Law, International Human Rights, Globalisation, and Sustainable Development. He has published widely in these areas. Surya's recent books include Human Rights Obligations of Business: Beyond the Corporate Responsibility to Respect? (co-edited with David Bilchitz) (Cambridge University Press, 2013); Confronting Capital Punishment in Asia: Human Rights, Politics, Public Opinion and Practices (co-edited with Roger Hood) (Oxford University Press, 2013); and Regulating Corporate Human Rights Violations: Humanizing Business (Routledge, 2012). Surya has also prepared two major reports on Access to Justice: Human Rights Abuses Involving Corporations (concerning India and China) for the International Commission of Jurists (ICJ), Geneva. He is the Faculty Editor of the City University of Hong Kong Law Review, and sits on the Editorial Board of the Netherlands Quarterly of Human Rights and the Vienna Journal on International Constitutional Law.

Janet Dine, Professor, Queen Mary, University of London. International Economic Development Law, Centre of Commercial Legal Studies (CCLS). Appointed at Queen Mary in 2004. 2005-2008 Director of CCLS. Specialities: Company Law, Corporate Governance, Globalisation, 2006-2009 AHRC Grant, "The Fairtrade Movement: Structure, legal support and social implications". The book of the project is published as The Processes and Practices of Fairtrade, Trust, Ethics and Governance. (Eds) Brigitte Glanville and Janet Dine, Routledge, 2012; Other books, The nature of Corporate Governance: the significance of national cultural identity, Edward Elgar 2013, Companies, International Trade and Human Rights, Cambridge University Press, 2005 (pp 292), The Governance of Corporate Groups, Cambridge University Press 2000

María Ángeles Fernández-Izquierdo received a PhD in Financial Economics and Accountancy (1991) from the Universidad de Valencia. She is a Full Professor in Finance and Accounting, Universitat Jaume I, Spain and a member of the Spanish Institute of Financial Analysts. From 1981 to 1987, she held a position as an Economist in the Valencia Stock Exchange. Her research focuses on efficiency, microstructure and hedging in stock markets and their derivatives, ethical investment and corporate social responsibility and has published scientific papers in high-impact international academic journals. She is currently a Faculty Member in postgraduate courses related to corporate finance, financial markets and sustainable finance.

Idoya Ferrero-Ferrero is PhD in Financial Economics and Accounting (2012) from the Universitat Jaume I. Her current research interest is in corporate governance, banking industry, and CSR areas. She has participated in several international congresses and has published scientific papers in international academic journals. She is a member of the research groups 'SoGREs' and 'Mercados Financieros' and she also teaches in corporate governance and accountability related subjects at postgraduate and undergraduate levels.

Sustainable Companies

UiO : University of Oslo

Anita M. Halvorsen, Dr., teaches Sustainable Development & Trade and Global Climate Change Law & Policy at the University of Denver, Sturm College of Law, and is Director of Global Legal Solutions, LLC, an international think tank and consultancy. She has worked at the Royal Ministry of Environment in Norway and at the law firm of Holme Roberts & Owen, in Denver, Colorado. She also taught courses at the University of Colorado, Boulder. Dr. Halvorsen is a member of the ILA's Committee on the Legal Principles Related to Climate Change. Furthermore, she does pro bono work for the Legal Response Initiative, in conjunction with the UNFCCC negotiations. Dr. Halvorsen received her first degree in law from the University of Oslo, Norway, and an LLM and a Doctor of the Science of Law (JSD) from Columbia University, New York.

Raphael Heffron, Dr. is a Lecturer in Law at the University of Stirling. Raphael is a trained Barrister-at-Law and is also an Associate Researcher at the Electricity Policy Research Group at the University of Cambridge. He has acted as a consultant for the World Bank and for London think-tanks. He is the Programme Director for the LLM in International Energy Law and Policy at the University of Stirling. Raphael's research interests are in energy law and policy, and in particular, electricity markets, sustainability, nuclear energy and other low carbon energy sources. Of importance is the aim to understand the legal challenges involved in planning for energy infrastructure projects and subsidy support.

Gail Henderson, Assistant Professor, joined the University of Alberta Faculty of Law in January 2013. She is currently completing a Doctor of Juridical Science at the University of Toronto. Her research focuses on the role of corporate governance in encouraging greater corporate environmental responsibility. Professor Henderson received her LLB from Osgoode Hall Law School as Gold Medalist in 2005, and served as law clerk to The Honourable Louise Charron of the Supreme Court of Canada. Prior to pursuing graduate studies, she practiced commercial litigation and environmental and municipal law. She is a frequent contributor to the law school's Faculty Blog.

T. Rick Irvin, Dr. Ph.D., J.D. serves as President of Registry Consultants, an environmental, toxicology and regulatory consultancy. He received his B.S. degree (Biochemistry & Microbiology) from the University of Georgia (UGA) in 1977 and his Ph.D. in Toxicology from MIT in 1983. Dr. Irvin graduated with the J.D. degree cum laude from the UGA School of Law in June 2008 and is a member of the State Bar of Georgia. Dr. Irvin advises US and international corporations on the integration of environmental and quality management practices into corporate environmental performance and compliance programs. e-Mail: UGAMIT@aol.com

Andrew Johnston is Professor Company Law and Corporate Governance at the University of Sheffield School of Law and a member of the Sustainable Companies Project. He has also taught at the Universities of Queensland, Cambridge and Warsaw. His current research interests lie in the intersection of corporate governance, law, and heterodox and institutional economics. Recent papers have examined regulatory responses to the financial crisis and offered a critical appraisal of corporate social responsibility initiatives from both economic and sustainability perspectives. He is currently working on European regulation of hedge funds and private equity, and on a project about theories of money.

Faizal Kurniawan is a lecturer of the Law of Contract and Civil Law at Faculty of Law Universitas Airlangga. Both his bachelor degree (S.H.) and master's degree (M.H.) were obtained from Faculty of Law Universitas Airlangga in 2005 and 2007. Both of the degrees were focused on Business Law subject. Then, in 2011, he finished his studies in Master of Laws (LL.M.) Program in International Business Law and Globalization at Utrecht University, The Netherlands. Besides delivering a lecture and conducting researches in Airlangga University Faculty of Law, he is also as partner at KJD Law Firm in Surabaya.

Sustainable Companies

UiO : University of Oslo

Tineke Lambooy, Dr., is Associate Professor at Nyenrode Business University (Multidisciplinary Research Center for Sustainability) and Utrecht University (Law School, Corporate Law Department). In 2010, she published her PhD research: Corporate Social Responsibility. Legal and semi-legal frameworks that support CSR (Kluwer, 2010). She conducts research and lectures on subjects such as (i) (semi-)legal frameworks including corporate law in relation to CSR (e.g. annual reporting, corporate governance and due diligence); (ii) business and human rights; dispute resolution; and (iii) business and biodiversity (including a special focus on the financial sector). Lambooy was trained as a corporate lawyer, specialised in international transactions such as mergers and acquisitions; privatisations; listings, controlled auctions, joint ventures, and due diligence investigations (with Loyens & Loeff in Amsterdam, The Netherlands.)

Carol Liao is a PhD/SJD Candidate at the Faculties of Law at the University of British Columbia and the University of Toronto (Joint Program), where she specializes in corporate law, CSR, and law and economics. Prior to graduate studies, Carol was a senior associate in the Mergers and Acquisitions Group of Shearman & Sterling LLP (New York), one of the world's top 10 global law firms. She is a Liu Scholar at the Liu Institute of Global Issues, and winner of the prestigious 2012 Robert Bertram Research Award issued by the Canadian Foundation for Governance Research.

Jianbo Lou, associate Professor of Law, Peking Law School. Lou had earned both Bachelor and Master in Law from Peking Law School and a PhD in Law from University of London. He taught 5 years at Cambridge University and is now teaching commercial law, property law, and financial law at Peking Law School. He publishes extensively in both Chinese and English, and has been consulted by various government agencies and private organizations. His ongoing research projects include: (1) contract and property law issues in financial derivative transactions; (2) trust law; (3) low-and-middle-income housing and (3) CSR and corporate governance.

Blanca Mamutse is a Lecturer in Law at the University of Surrey, which she joined in 2009. She has recently taken over the role of Deputy Director of the Environmental and Regulatory Research Group at the University of Surrey. Her key research interests lie in the field of corporate insolvency law, particularly the relationship between private and public interests in the context of insolvency distribution, and the effects of insolvency on long-term liabilities.

Cecilie Mauritzen, Director of CICERO Center for International Climate and Environmental Research – Oslo, holds an MS in geophysics from the University of Bergen and a PhD in physical oceanography from Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

Mauritzen is a physical oceanographer, a specialist on state changes in the deep ocean. She was elected Lead Author for both the Fourth and Fifth Assessment Reports of the IPCC. In 2013 she was elected member of the Norwegian Academy of Science and Letters.

CICERO is a private research institute spanning the field of climate from the physical drivers of change, through economic and political analysis to behavioural studies on what creates societal change.

Robin Miège is Director of Strategy in Directorate General Environment of the European Commission. He was Head of Unit "Chief Economist, Instruments and Impact Assessment" in the same directorate previous to this appointment.

Before this he was Head of Strategic Co-operation and Technology Transfer at the European Commission's Joint Research Centre (the EC's corporate research centre). Prior to this, Robin was in charge of the development and management of EC Innovation and Technology Transfer programmes and policies.

Qualified in economics and political sciences, Robin worked in UK academia and in regional economic development organisations in France before joining the Commission.

Sustainable Companies

UiO : University of Oslo

David Millon is the J.B. Stombock Professor of Law at Washington and Lee University in Lexington, Virginia. He has written a number of law review articles on the subject of corporate social responsibility and on corporate governance more generally and is a frequent speaker on these topics in the United States and abroad. Professor Millon has been a member of the law faculty at Washington and Lee since 1986 and has held visiting posts at Cambridge University and Cornell University. He holds a J.D. from Harvard and a Ph.D. in legal history from Cornell. He has been a member of the Sustainable Companies Project at the University of Oslo since 2011.

David Monciardini has a PhD in 'Law and Society' from the Law Faculty of Milan University (2013) and he is currently working at Ferrara Business School. His PhD Thesis explores the social and political forces that are shaping the emergence of a transnational regulatory regime for corporate sustainability reporting, empirically focusing on the EU arena. Trained as sociologist, David has been shortly working at DG Internal Market on the new EU Directive on non-financial reporting.

Ivo Mulder is a Programme Officer at UNEP Finance Initiative (UNEP FI) and leads the programme on ecosystems, water and biodiversity.

Over the past years he has built a team at UNEP FI and founded the Natural Capital Declaration, which aims to mainstream natural capital integration in the finance sector. He also directed an innovative project on sovereign credit risk (called E-RISC), initiated the UNEP FI REDD+ and Sustainable Land Use programme and published more than forty articles and reports on how and why climate change, biodiversity, REDD+ and water issues are financially material for banks and investors.

Mr. Mulder has over eight years of experience working in the UN, academia, consulting and with NGOs on building the business case for companies – especially financial institutions - to deal with climate, water and ecosystem changes. He holds a MSc in Environmental Sciences from Wageningen University in the Netherlands.

Jukka Mähönen is a Professor of Civil Law at the University of Turku and an adjunct professor of law and economics at the universities of Helsinki and Eastern Finland. He was appointed the Dean of the Faculty of Law in the beginning of 2010. Mähönen's research interests focus on company and securities law, accounting and auditing law, as well as law and economics. He is currently involved in research projects concerning company law, sustainable development and European economic law. He has served in the various Finnish Government law reform committees. He is the chair of the Audit Board of Finland.

María Jesús Muñoz-Torres is a PhD in Agricultural Economics from the Polytechnic University of Valencia (1994). She is a Full Professor in Finance in the Department of Finance and Accounting, Universitat Jaume I, Spain and a member of the Spanish Institute of Financial Analysts. Her research focuses on stock markets and their derivatives, corporate social responsibility (CSR), socially responsible investing and efficiency of public financial support to companies and has published scientific papers in high-impact international academic journals. She is currently a faculty member in a number of postgraduate courses related to CSR and development and corporate finance.

Marcia Narine teaches at St. Thomas University School of Law in Florida focusing on civil procedure, business associations, corporate governance, corporate social responsibility, human rights, and employment law.

She also served as the Deputy General Counsel and Vice President, Global Compliance and Business Standards of Ryder, a transportation and supply chain company. Before joining Ryder, she was an employment lawyer and commercial litigator with New York and Miami firms. She is also a board member of the Footprints Foundation in the Democratic Republic of Congo. Professor Narine earned her law degree from Harvard, and her bachelor's degree from Columbia University.

Sustainable Companies

UiO : University of Oslo

Kate Raworth is a Senior Visiting Research Associate at Oxford University's Environmental Change Institute, and a Visiting Fellow at the International Institute for Environment and Development. She was formerly Senior Researcher at Oxfam, where she created the concept of the doughnut of planetary and social boundaries, and spent four years as a economist and co-author of UNDP's Human Development Report. Her current research focuses on rethinking economics for 21st century realities and challenges, in the faces of planetary boundaries and extreme social inequalities. She blogs regularly at www.kateraworth.com and is on twitter @KateRaworth

Tomasz Regucki is a researcher at Allerhand Institute, PhD candidate and the graduate of Jagiellonian University Faculty of Law (M.A.) and the graduate of Faculty of Finance at University of Economics in Kraków (B.A.).

His academic interests include inter alia company law, financial market law, foreign exchange market, macroeconomic policy and economic theory. Author of articles, participant and organizer of academic conferences and lecturer on numerous training courses on this subject.

Benjamin J. Richardson, Professor, is a member of the University of British Columbia Faculty of Law where he holds the Canada Research Chair in Environmental Law & Sustainability and is Director of the Centre for Law and the Environment. His scholarship focuses on socially responsible investment and its regulation, and he is the author of the books Fiduciary Law and Responsible Investing (Routledge, 2013), Local Climate Change Law (Edward Elgar, 2012), Indigenous Peoples and the Law (Hart Publishing, 2009), Socially Responsible Investment Law (Oxford University Press, 2008), and Environmental Law for Sustainability (Hart Publishing, 2006).

Johanna Rosenqvist, LL.M., M.S.S.c (Insurance Studies and Environmental Ethics), Doctoral Candidate in Environmental Law, Stockholm University.

After having completed her studies at Uppsala university, Johanna worked for Zürich Insurance in Stockholm, with claims handling for larger and medium sized companies (including municipal companies), and small companies through group insurance. After a leave of absence with her first child, Johanna conducted grant financed research, before taking a second leave of absence with her second child. Currently, Johanna is a doctoral candidate under the LL.D research programme in Environmental Law at Stockholm university. Johanna teaches LL.M students, students in the Master of Environmental Law courses at Stockholm university, and tutors students writing their final papers for the LL.M-degrees. Johanna also teaches judges in the Swedish Environmental Courts and Environmental Supreme Court on issues regarding financial securities for environmentally harmful or potentially harmful operational activities under the Swedish Environmental Code.

Johanna can be reached at johanna.rosenqvist@juridicum.su.se

Erik Røsæg, professor, is formerly the Director of the Scandinavian Institute of Maritime Law, University of Oslo. He teaches and writes in the fields of maritime law and third party interests in commercial law.

He has been much involved in the negotiations of liability Conventions in the IMO, chairs the Norwegian Maritime Law Commission and has also chaired other committees preparing draft legislation. He has published extensively in national and international journals and books, and is much used as a speaker and consultant in a number of jurisdictions. He is currently involved in the Oslo Law of the Sea Forum.

Sustainable Companies

UiO : University of Oslo

Priscilla Schwartz, Dr., is Senior Lecturer in Law at the School of Law and Social Sciences, University of East London. She obtained her Ph.D. in Law, LLM, LLB (Hons) and BA from the University of London and the University of Sierra Leone. She researches on growth promotion in Africa through international economic law (IEL), and the sustainability of economic activities. She is the Deputy Chair of the African IEL Network, and the book review editor of the MJIEL. She is a Barrister and Solicitor with over 18 years PQE advising governments and companies operating in the energy and natural resource sectors.

Beate Sjøfjell is Professor dr. juris at the University of Oslo, Faculty of Law. She is the head of the research group Companies, Markets, Society and the Environment at the Faculty of Law in Oslo, and of the international research project Sustainable Companies (2010-2013). Beate has published extensively on EU company and securities law and the integration of sustainable development. Many of her papers are available at <http://ssrn.com/author=375947>.

Arild Skedsmo, 1968. Master in physics, bachelor in social economy and bachelor in social anthropology. Worked as researcher on energy and environment related issues in the transport sector, and emergency relief/development in Sudan. Worked with WWF for seven years, previously as Head of Climate- and Energy department, later as Conservation Director.

Amanda Sonnerfeldt holds a PhD in Business Law and is currently a Senior Lecturer at the Department of Business Law at the School of Economics and Management at Lund University, Sweden. Her doctoral thesis focused on the development and use of sustainability assurance standards. Amanda's research interests encompass multilevel regulation, in particular, regulation of corporate reporting and auditing. She is currently involved in a project "Standards in a globalising world", working with the Department of Business Administration researching on the emerging and prevailing logics of corporate reporting and the development of Integrated Reporting. She has published and led academic and practitioner seminars in the above areas.

Endre Stavang is Professor of Law at the University of Oslo. Professor Stavang's scholarship explores Property Law and Environmental Law, both separately and in combination, with a particular focus on liability regimes and the development and application of economic insights in appellate courts and legal scholarship. His background includes a Fulbright research scholar year at Yale Law School and an academical sabbat year at the University of Arizona as well as hands on experience as an appellate court judge and an in-house oil, gas and energy lawyer.

Sujayadi H. Sujayadi obtained his bachelor degree (S.H.) in business law from Airlangga University Faculty of Law in 2005. Then he worked at Law Office of Winda and Partners, a boutique law firm in Surabaya, handling most civil and commercial litigation. In 2006 he joined to Airlangga University Faculty of Law as lecturer on the subject of Indonesian Civil Procedure and Commercial Arbitration. He completed his master of laws degree (LL.M.) in International Business Law and Globalisation from Utrecht University School of Law. Besides teaching in Airlangga University Faculty of Law, he is also as partner at KJD Law Firm in Surabaya.

Karsten Engsig Sørensen is a professor and PhD coordinator at the Department of Law, Aarhus University. He holds a Danish law degree, a PhD (on EU company law), and a Danish Dr. Jur. (on joint ventures). He also has an LLM from the University of Exeter. His research is mainly focused on EU law and company law, and in these areas, he has published several books and articles in both Danish and English. Additionally, he has been the editor of several books on company law, EU law and WTO law appearing on, inter alia, Kluwer Law International and Cambridge University Press. He is a one of the two editors of the SSRN e-journal Nordic and European Company Law, and a member of the Nordic Network for Company Law.

Sustainable Companies

UiO : University of Oslo

Lorraine Talbot. Since joining Warwick University in 2008, Lorraine has continued to develop her research into contextual and critical approaches to company law, corporate governance and business organisations. Her book Progressive Corporate Governance for the 21st Century (Routledge 2012) assesses governance which can be said to either compel or resist social progress. It emphasises the centrality of a labour orientated corporate governance in achieving social progress and sustainability. She has just completed a book on company law and corporate governance for the Great Debates series with Palgrave, a text which draws out the vigorous political debates that reside within these subject areas. She is currently writing a second edition of Critical Company Law with Routledge. Lorraine has published in many popular journals including the Modern Law Review, Northern Ireland Legal Quarterly and the Seattle Law Review. She is general editor of Warwick Law School's SSRN working papers and Director of the multi-cultural scholars' programme. Lorraine convenes the company law stream for the Society of Legal Scholars.

Celia Taylor works at the University of Denver Sturm College of Law. She received her JD from New York University and an LLM from Columbia University, where she taught a course in legal writing and research. Professor Taylor currently teaches primarily in the corporate area, and has an abiding interest in human rights law. Her areas of speciality include corporate governance and corporate social responsibility.

Mark B. Taylor is a Senior Researcher at the Fafo Institute for Applied International Studies in Oslo. Mark's interest in regulatory and policy responses to violence and conflict, including the ways in which law is applied to non-state actors such as business. A former Managing Director at the Fafo Institute, Mark has been an advisor and analyst for governments, business, civil society and the United Nations and he represents Fafo as a founding member of the Just Jobs Network. Mark is an active analyst in the media on issues related to international law, human rights, peace and conflict. Mark edits the blog The Laws of Rule www.lawsofrule.net and holds a B.A. (honours) in Religious Studies from McGill University, in Montreal and an LL.M (cum laude) in Public International Law from Leiden University, The Netherlands (1996).

Georgina Tsagas is a Research Assistant in Corporate Law at University College London and is currently completing her doctoral studies at Queen Mary University of London on a Full Scholarship (QMUL School of Law). Georgina is dually qualified as a lawyer in Greece (2009) and as a Solicitor of England & Wales (2012) (qualified, non-practising). Her research interests include takeover regulation, corporate law and securities regulation. Her broader research plan covers a review and critical analysis of the 2011 changes to the Code on Takeovers and Mergers and a comparative study of directors' duties between different EU Member States. E-mail: g.tsagas@ucl.ac.uk

Shann Turnbull BSc (Melb.), MBA (Harvard) founded a number of enterprises with three being listed on the Australian stock exchange. He participated in the acquisition of a dozen firms and re-organised them as Chairman, CEO or an advisor. He co-founded the first educational course in the world for company directors in 1975. Details are in the footnotes outlining the MBA course he later designed for educating "Governance Architects". Refer to: <https://docs.google.com/document/d/1c9gt9jsSL7i-JovneNfFiGjvxcj2V8Jz98Ku461aHmk/edit?pli=1>. His PhD established the science of governance grounded in natural science. His bibliography and academic CV at <http://independent.academia.edu/ShannTurnbull/CurriculumVitae> records his research into reforming the theories and practices of capitalism.

Sustainable Companies

UiO : University of Oslo

Charlotte Villiers is Professor of Company Law at the University of Bristol. Her research and writings are in the areas of corporate governance and labour law, including worker participation, boardroom diversity, accounting and shareholder engagement.

Anja Wiesbrock is a Postdoctoral Researcher at the University of Oslo, Department of Private Law. She has previously worked as an Assistant Professor in EU Law at the University of Maastricht and holds a PhD from the same institution. She has also worked as a Visiting Researcher and Lecturer at Harvard Law School, Universitat Pompeu Fabra (Barcelona), Dokuz Eylul University (Izmir) and Jawaharlal Nehru University (New Delhi). She has published numerous articles, book chapters and one monograph on different aspects of EU law, including on state aid and on the role of the environmental integration principle in public procurement.

Anders Wijkman is an opinionmaker and author. He is co-president of the Club of Rome and chair of the Swedish Association of Recycling Industries.

Anders was a Member of the European Parliament from 1999-2009, where his focus was on issues related to environment and development, energy and climate and humanitarian affairs. Anders has also served as Assistant Secretary-General of the United Nations and Secretary General of the Swedish Red Cross.

Anders is a member of the Swedish Royal Academy of Sciences and the World Future Council.

Anders is honoray doctor at Linköping University(2011).

His most recent book "Bankrupting Nature" was published in November 2012.