

UNIVERSITY OF OSLO

INVESTIGATIVE INTERVIEWING FOR FAIR AND EFFICIENT ADMINISTRATION OF JUSTICE

ABOUT

The aim of an Investigative Interview is to obtain accurate, reliable, and actionable information during criminal investigations. An investigative interview must respect the inherent dignity and physical and mental integrity of all persons involved in an investigation – victims, witnesses, and suspects alike.

Imagine a world where police investigations are not only effective but also uphold the highest standards of human rights. This is the vision of the Norwegian Centre for Human Rights (NCHR) in advancing the transformative interviewing and investigation method called Investigative Interviewing, globally.

The Problem

Traditional police interrogation methods often involve manipulation, undue pressure, and even physical violence, leading to human rights violations, misleading information and a heightened risk of errors of justice. Applying these interrogation techniques can result in false confessions, wrongful convictions, and ultimately a loss of public trust in the justice system.

An Effective and Human Rights Centered Approach

The methodology of Investigative interviewing offers a credible alternative to coercive interrogation techniques. It aims to obtain accurate, reliable, and actionable information without resorting to manipulation, lies, pressure, or excessive use of force. The method was developed in the UK, referred to as the PEACE model. In Norway it is referred to as the KREATIV model and training program.

Impact

The adoption of Investigative Interviewing can prevent torture in custody, avert wrongful convictions, increase trust and promote the rule of law.

Bilateral and Global Outreach

NCHR is cooperating with UN agencies, experts, NGOs, academies, and police forces in a number of countries. Together with a global network of organisations and experts, we develop tools and resources, support research, and conduct trainings to advance interviewing and investigation practices globally. Some of the material NCHR has contributed to include the UN Manual on Investigative Interviewing for Criminal Investigation, the UNODC eLearning on Investigative interviewing, the Méndez Principles on Effective Interviewing for Investigations and Information Gathering, and the CTI training tool on Investigative Interviewing for criminal cases.

THE NORWEGIAN CENTRE FOR HUMAN RIGHTS

NCHR is a part of the University of Oslo, Faculty of Law. The NCHR's International Department (ID) has an extended network of cooperating partners around the world including academic institutions, UN organs and civil society organisations. Our activities are supported by the Norwegian MFA.

We promote human rights through international competence building, knowledge enhancement and dialogue in the countries we cooperate with.

We aim at integrating a gender sensitive approach across our thematic areas of commitment:

- Human Rights Education
- Rule of Law
- Freedom of Religion or Belief
- Business and Human Rights

THE TEAM

Knut D. Asplund

Head, Rule of Law,
knut.asplund@nchr.uio.no

Gisle Kvanvig

Director, Multilateral cooperation
gisle.kvanvig@nchr.uio.no

Susanne H. Flølo

Senior Adviser, Rule of Law s.h.flolo@nchr.uio.no

Katarina Lavrinenko Friis-Olsen

Project coordinator, Ukraine
k.l.friis-olsen@nchr.uio.no

NCHR Expert consultants
& Police Superintendents

Dr. Asbjørn Rachlew
Dr. Ivar Fahsing

Click or scan to learn more

tinyurl.com/NCHR-Interviewing

TOOLS AND RESOURCES ON EFFECTIVE INTERVIEWING AND INVESTIGATION

UN Manual on Investigative Interviewing for Criminal Investigation

The United Nations Manual on Investigative Interviewing for Criminal Investigation – a collaborative effort by the DPO, OHCHR, and UNODC. It provides a practical introduction to investigative interviewing, an effective, ethical and human rights compliant approach to interviewing victims, witnesses and suspects of crime, as well as crucial safeguards and how to sustain investigative interviewing through broader police and justice reform.

www.tinyurl.com/UN-int

Scan me to access the manual

UNODC eLearning on Investigative Interviewing

Scan me to access the eLearning

Available in multiple languages, this self-paced interactive course aims to engage users through exercises, videos and quizzes. The eLearning course provides a solid foundation for comprehensive training on conducting investigative interviews. Upon successfully completing all modules, users will receive a certificate. Additional modules on Human Memory, Communication and Investigation Management and Decision-making are also available.

www.elearningunodc.org

Now available for iOS and Android

Méndez Principles on Effective Interviewing for Investigations and Information Gathering

The Méndez Principles propose a concrete alternative to interrogation methods that rely on manipulation and coercion to extract confessions. They provide guidance on obtaining accurate and reliable information, while protecting the human rights and the dignity of all persons being interviewed, including through the implementation of legal and procedural safeguards in the first hours of police custody. They are available in 14 languages.

www.interviewingprinciples.com

Scan me to access the website

The Summary Checklist: Investigative Interviewing for Criminal Investigation

Scan me to access the checklist

Peer-reviewed by leading experts in the field of investigative interviewing, the checklist aims to uphold both effectiveness and ethical standards in investigations, making it an essential resource for professionals and students alike. The checklist is designed primarily for those already familiar with the methodology. It aims to present critical elements of a sound and effective interview in a visually clear manner to ensure that critical steps and considerations are remembered and followed.

www.jus.uio.no/smr/english/about/id/law/

CTI Police Resource Toolkit and Training Tool on Investigative Interviewing for Criminal Cases

CTI's Police Resource Toolkit for Professional, Human Rights-compliant Policing provides practical orientation on how to effectively implement existing international law and human rights standards in policing and law enforcement activities. The Resource Toolkit compiles existing resources and promising State practices on various aspects of policing and is intended to informing police reforms, fairness and transparency in policing and reducing the risks and incentives for torture or other ill-treatment.

bit.ly/3WHERPI

Scan me to access the tools